FLOOR DEBATE

April 1, 2003 LB 265

SENATOR TYSON: ...nothing comes.

SENATOR THOMPSON: ...in the examples that I gave before, in the states that concealed...a person with a concealed carry permit is accused of a crime, they can still go out and buy guns after the police take their guns?

SENATOR TYSON: Well, are you talking about the state of Nebraska?

SENATOR THOMPSON: Yes, I'm asking about this bill.

SENATOR TYSON: Okay, to buy a gun in the state of Nebraska, you have to have one of two things. You have to have a handgun purchase certificate, which obviates the requirements of the Brady, so-called Brady law, or you have to have a direct check. Now the direct check goes through NCIC and ..

SENATOR THOMPSON: No, I'm just talking about a revocation. The revocation here, it would be...they would be able to hold the gun through the entire court process. They (inaudible)...

SENATOR TYSON: If your license was up for revocation, you can't carry a gun while it's being revoked.

SENATOR THOMPSON: Okay, but you're saying if you're arrested you can still carry the gun.

SENATOR TYSON: If they're arrested for what?

SENATOR THOMPSON: Well, it says in violation of subsections (1) and (2) of Section 11 of this act, Section 12, 13, and so forth. That's when they're guilty of a Class I misdemeanor. And then it says a permit holder who violates this section also would be subject to revocation. So I'm just trying to figure out if...because in some states if you are arrested, your permit is revoked.

SENATOR TYSON: If you're merely arrested?

SENATOR THOMPSON: Yes.
